I use Sun's Java platform and Microsoft Products.

I feel that Sun has made a lot of noise over this issue. The same is true, in my opinion, for others that took part in the litigation against Microsoft. Certainly the parties disagree and some changes are needed, however, the way the entire proceedings have been conducted from start to now causes me concern and problems.

I do believe that Sun and others have pushed so hard because of Microsoft's reputation. It's too bad that some of us, me included, happen to be much smaller in power than others.
